

EXPROPRIATION IN COSTA RICA

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, June 28, 1995

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my strong concern over the expropriation of the cellular telephone system installed and formerly operated by Millicom in Costa Rica. Congress must address this situation not only for the sake of this U.S. company, but because of the terrible discouragement the expropriation makes against investors to bring Latin America into the information age, and onto the information highway.

Millicom has headquarters in New York and operates cellular telephone networks in 19 countries in Europe, Asia, Africa, and Latin America. The company was invited by Costa Rica to install a cellular telephone system there. After the system had succeeded and was being expanded, the government began using insidious techniques of regulatory expropriation to nullify Millicom's property rights. Finally, a court ruled that the Costa Rican Constitution requires the government's telephone company to be a monopoly, and thereby expropriated Millicom's network and overturned written assurances Millicom had received that it could own and operate the system. Negotiations with Millicom to resolve the situation were on the threshold of an agreement when they were suddenly terminated last month by the President of Costa Rica.

REMEMBERING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN BURGER TO THE COURT AND THE NATION

HON. BRUCE F. VENTO

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the life of an extraordinary Minnesotan, former Chief Justice Warren Burger, who passes away this past Sunday. I am proud to say that Justice Burger was not only from Minnesota, but he hailed from my home city and neighborhood of St. Paul, MN.

Justice Burger's devotion to the Court and the justice system was evident in his hard work and long tenure as a public servant. He began working in the Federal court system in 1956 and remained until he retired as the most senior justice on the Supreme Court through 1986. Justice Burger devoted time after his retirement from the Court to organize the celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the Constitution and Bill of Rights, serving as the Chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

During his 17 years on the Supreme Court, Justice Burger made rulings on complex and controversial issues such as school busing, obscenity laws, prison reform, and sexual discrimination, and he was a special champion of judicial reform. It was importantly Justice Burger, a Nixon appointee, who in one of the most important chapters in our history wrote the opinion clearing the way for the release of the Watergate tapes that would become a determining factor in Nixon's resignation of the Presidency averting a constitutional crisis that threatened our Nation.

During his years of service on the Supreme Court, he watched the ideology of the Court as a whole swing between liberalism and conservatism. Justice Burger tended toward strict conservatism, but he was also sympathetic and pragmatic; open to others ideas often writing opinions praised by his colleagues attempting to insure the Constitution as a living document and judicial review activism.

The Nation is saddened by the loss of former Chief Justice Warren Burger. As we mourn his death, however, we must remember how much he gave to the Court and the Nation. His work is an important legacy that impacts every American's life and will shape the lives of future generations. We will not forget his positive contributions to this country, and I join the Nation in applauding his accomplishments and expressing my sympathy to Justice Burger's surviving family for their loss.

TRIBUTE TO THE NATION'S HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES BLACK COLLEGES ADVOCACY DAY

HON. LOUIS STOKES

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Nation's historically black colleges and universities, one of our country's crown jewels. HBCUs have educated some of our Nation's most distinguished leaders—past and present. They include the former Supreme Court Justice, the late—Thurgood Marshall, Jr., renowned civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., former Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, Dr. Louis Sullivan, the current Secretary of the Department of Energy, Hazel O'Leary, the list goes on.

While HBUCs represent only 3 percent of all American institutions of higher education, they graduate 34 percent of all African Americans with bachelor's degrees. Of the top five schools in the Nation with the most black graduates accepted into medical school in 1993, four were HBUCs.

Mr. Speaker, the Nation's HBCUs stand 105 strong and proud. In recognition of this standing, I ask that the statement given by one of our most distinguished former colleagues, the Honorable William "Bill" Gray, be included in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. This distinguished gentlemen recently testified before the Labor, Health and Human Services, and Educational Appropriations Subcommittee.

His testimony, vividly outlines the achievements of the Nation's historically black colleges and universities, and why the Federal investment must continue. The education cuts contained in the Republican-passed budget resolution, from eliminating funding for trio, to freezing funding for Pell grants, would devastate these institutions.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to lend their strong support to preserving and enhancing this national resource.

TESTIMONY BEFORE THE HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE ON LABOR, HHS AND EDUCATION BY THE HONORABLE WILLIAM H. GRAY, III, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND, FEBRUARY 3, 1995

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Subcommittee on Labor, HHS and Education Appropriations, I am William H. Gray, III, chairman and chief executive officer of the United Negro College Fund (UNCF). I am pleased to return to this body, where I served for many years as a Member of the Appropriations Committee and chairman of the Budget Committee. As a result of those experiences, I know and respect the challenges you face and the complex and difficult budgetary and programmatic issues that are before you.

Now, as head of the college fund, I wrestle with the same question you face as members of this subcommittee, and that is, "How and to what extent do we support educational opportunity for those with the aptitude and ability to succeed in college, but whose family financial circumstances limit their opportunities." The college fund has raised over $250 million in the past two and a half years in corporate and individual gifts to help supplement other student and institutional aid at our 41 member institutions. And each year we must justify our 'bottom line' to a corporate board of directors which carefully scrutinizes our costs, our productivity, and our results. Fiscal responsibility and accountability are crucial to the college fund's operations and viability. I believe the same is true for the viability of our Nation.

As you well know, the options you will hear during these hearings and through other channels will be many and varied. I believe they must be carefully weighed and analyzed, as your final decisions will be critical. They will impact the Nation's future generations and ability to compete in a global market place, and thus, will help set the stage for what America is to become. My comments are based on a fundamental principle that I'd like to leave with you in the hope that it will help guide your deliberations and decision making—the principle is that as a Nation we will reap what we sow.

The fact that our Nation leads the world in economic and military might is not coincidental. Our unmatched educational and health systems did not happen fortuitously. The most advanced system of technological communication in the universe did not just fall out of the sky and land in America. A very deliberate and concerted effort begun some 100 years ago was made by our Government and private leaders to invest in industrialization, research and invention, and most importantly in the training and education of Americans. Those investments have resulted in today's harvest of American economic, educational, and technological superiority. This economic investment in intellectual capital has paid off well.

I believe, however, that we cannot rest on these laurels, because if America is to maintain its leadership role, we must continue to strategically plant and cultivate seeds of educational and economic opportunity. According to the U.S. Department of Labor's Workforce 2000 report, over 50 percent of new workforce entrants will be minorities by the year 2000, the majority of which will be African Americans; and most of the new jobs created will be technical in nature, requiring a more highly educated workforce.

Institutions of higher education have a very important role in preparing tomorrow's workers and America's historically black colleges and universities are especially fertile ground for the growth and nurturing of tomorrow's workforce. The reasons are clear:
